Graduate Certificate of Disaster Health and Humanitarian Assistance

✔ Specialise in a field you are passionate about with JCU's
Graduate Certificate of Disaster Health and Humanitarian

This course is designed to meet the needs of health professionals and graduates wanting to develop skills and knowledge in the fields of disaster health management, humanitarian assistance, in Australia and overseas.

In addition to its two core subjects of Public Health in Humanitarian

“Our students are passionate professionals who are looking to develop specialist public health skills and explore where it can take them. Developing a thorough understanding of disaster prevention, preparedness, response and recovery enables our graduates to effectively contribute to the management of population health needs in a range of disaster-related roles. Students also gain the theoretical and technical knowledge to assess the needs of displaced populations, and devise appropriate public health strategies in humanitarian emergencies. Our subject coordinators and guest lecturers have spent time in the field, both internationally and domestically. They are able to relay personal experiences and model invaluable ‘on-the-job’ practical skills.”
