Speech Pathologists diagnose, treat, and provide management services to people of all ages with communication disorders, including speech, language, voice, fluency, social communication, and literacy difficulties. They also work with communities to prevent or minimise effects of communication and swallowing problems.

Speech Pathologists work from an integrated and holistic framework that acknowledges and addresses the complexity and far-reaching impacts of a communication and/or swallowing disability on a person's daily functioning. They critically evaluate the best treatment approaches for clients based on robust scientific evidence to optimise outcomes.

Speech pathologists engage with a variety of service delivery models through which they can provide assessment, intervention, consultation, collaboration and advocacy.

Speech pathologists provide services across all of the following domains: advocacy, clinical services, consultation, education, prevention, population health, and research for communication and swallowing disorders across the lifespan.
